The Second International Workshop “Sustainable Urban Development: The role of urban regeneration in the regional context” is part of activities planned by the research group CLUDs. This workshop, organized in collaboration with San Diego State University, will be held in San Diego, CA, on the 11th and 12th June 2013. The objective of the workshop is to summarize the activities carried out during the Working Package No.2 Research CLUDs. In particular, the purpose of the workshop is related to the factors of success of interventions of urban regeneration in the United States and in a specific manner in the area of San Diego, with reference to two specific aspects:

1. The Community-led approach: in this case urban regeneration initiatives will be analyzed with respect to their ability to generate benefits to meet the needs of local communities.

2. The Urban-Rural Connection: as a means of contributing to the definition of usable tools for urban regeneration.
